Finances of a City: Berea's Reserve Funds

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

There has been more discussion in Berea lately at the city council level on how reserve funds are managed, and whether the City of Berea has been pulling too much money out of those reserves to cover operating costs. The term "rainy day funds" has been used, though Berea does not have an officially designated fund. According to an EKU study from the past year on local government reserve funds, a rainy day fund typically applies to state, and not local, finances, and can be used as an alternative to cutting services or staff during economic downturns.

What Berea does have, according to Director of Finance Susan Meeks, is

Council Approves Budget, Talks on Finances

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

The Berea City Council passed the amended budget for 2011/2012 on Tuesday night, though both Jerry Little and Ronnie Terrill voted no. The council habitually passes an amended annual budget around May of each year, after they get a clearer picture of both revenues and expenses.

When Little was asked why he voted no, he said, "I don't feel like anyone is doing anything wrong. Everybody does a good job. But I'd segregate the money a little different."

In an earlier city council meeting,

Fundraising for Guild

The Kentucky Guild of Artists and Craftsmen is partnering with the Internet fundraising tool, Power2Give, to raise the money to renovate their new building on Broadway, the former site of Powdermill Pottery. For every dollar that's donated to the Guild through the website, <http://power2give.org/go/p/668> or <http://power2give.org/go/p/671>, the Republic Bank in Lexington will match it dollar for dollar.

The two numbers on the websites listed above represent the two renovation projects the Guild is trying to fund; replacing the doors, and repairing/replacing the windows. The 668 website is the funding mechanism for the windows, and as of press time 3 percent of the $4,900 goal has been raised. The 671 website page goes to the door replacement project, and as of press time 24 percent of the $4,000 goals had been raised.

The site will stay open for donations for approximately 46 more days.

TOURING OF BEREAS GARDENS

Beth Myers/The Citizen

Marjorie Acevedo stands near her waterfall feature in her garden on Prospect Street, a piece she added in 2004. Her property is one of six gardens featured in the Berea Arts Council's Garden Tour on May 12. At first she said no to putting her garden on the tour because it needed so much work. But the Council sent Patti Davis to help who is studying to be a master gardener, and Benjamin Truitt and his parents helped Marjorie out as well.

Citizen Editor

This is the second of a three-part series leading up to the Berea Garden Tour on May 12, hosted by the Berea Arts Council.

The backyard and garden of Marjorie Acevedo forms an incomplete picture if seen separately from the house. The stately, turn-of-the-century home is fully integrated with the outdoor environment. With French doors opening out to a wrap-around porch, and a brick patio leading to the small waterfall feature and flower garden, the set-up reflects the idyllic southern home, when mimosas were drunk on the porch in the hot sun and croquet was played on the lawn. A porch swing hangs from an arbor on the patio, where wisteria climbs in the spring, adding to the lazy ambience.

"I've had a lot of good parties here," Marjorie said, as she drank tea and looked out at her garden.

Marjorie's property on Prospect Street is one of six gardens featured in the Berea Arts Council's Garden Tour on Saturday,

May 12. This is the first time her home has been on the garden tour. Sally Hindman had been to a potluck party at Marjorie's house, and asked her if she would consider featuring it on the tour.

As the owner, Marjorie reflects the elegance and grace of her home; she has a visitor book where she would put photographs of all the people who stayed with her. This group included Danish gymnasts, English folk dancers, Cajun folk dancers, relatives, old school

Wayland planned activities for the half-day event that were based on the book, whose protagonist Professor Lucy was based on Doris Ulmann.

American Girl Event Proves a Success

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

When Marty Wayland looked at the back of the American Girl book, the Kit mystery Midnight in Lonesome Hollow, and saw both a photograph of a Berea College student weaving and a well-known Doris Ulmann photograph of an Appalachian woman surrounded by baskets, she knew she was on to something special. The book, Midnight in Lonesome Hollow, took place in eastern Kentucky, but when Wayland saw the photographs, she realized the Berea connection was very close with this book as well.

"Doris Ulmann was the inspiration for the Professor Lucy character in the book," Wayland said, the director of the Berea College Store. "I had known the eastern Kentucky connection, but when I saw the photos I realized there were Berea connections too."

This Berea connection to the book, Midnight in Lonesome Hollow led Wayland to sponsoring an American Girl event this past Saturday, which included a book reading, a tour of photographs at the Doris Ulmann Gallery and different craft demonstrations. Around 11 adults attended the American Girl event, with 17 girls, who were encouraged to bring their own American Girl dolls.

Professor Lucy in the book traveled to Appalachia to document folk culture, similar to the work that Ulmann undertook in 1932 when she started putting together documentation of Appalachian folk arts and crafts for the book, Handicrafts of the Southern Highland. Wayland had emailed the author of the American Girl book, Kathleen Ernst, to confirm that Ulmann was the inspiration for the book's protagonist.

Ernst responded, "I visited Berea as part of my research trip for MLH [Midnight in Lonesome Hollow]. Doris Ulmann's work was certainly part of the

Drug Arrest

• On April 27, at 7:16 p.m., officers from the Berea Police Department responded to Wal-Mart because of people buying methamphetamine precursors. The officers arrived and observed the subjects getting in their vehicle and leaving the parking lot.

The vehicle was stopped at McDonalds next door. Andrew Purvis, 32, of Berea and Heather Robinson, 29, of Berea were inside the vehicle. They gave consent to having their vehicle searched, and officers located five different items used to manufacture methamphetamine.

After interviewing both of them, officers obtained a search warrant for their apartment in the 300 block of Harrison King Lane. Members of the Madison County Task Force and Madison County Sheriff's Department assisted the Berea Police in the execution of the search warrant. Officers located two different methamphetamine labs inside the apartment.

Community Forestry

“When we see land as a community, we may begin to use it with love and respect.” – Aldo Leopold

I am employed by Berea College to be the Forester for their 8,400 acres of forest land. Although the College owns the property, to some degree, this is a “community” forest. The College itself is a community of many people; faculty, staff, students, etc., who all benefit, directly or indirectly, from the Berea College Forest. Not to mention that fishing is allowed at Owsley Lake, and trails are open to the public at Indian Fort and the cross country area. Plus, everyone in the Berea Water District benefits from the managed forested watershed through the quality of their drinking water.

The word “community” comes from the Latin word com; meaning “together” and munis; an Etruscan word having to do with the exchange of services. (Wikipedia) So, yes, Berea College Forest is, in the examples above, a sort of “community forest”. However, this does not mean the property is open everywhere for anyone to do whatever they want. In fact, the Berea College Forest is not open to the public, unless by permit, anywhere other than the areas mentioned.

Aldo Leopold, often referred to as the “Father of Ecology”, eloquently communicated in his “A Sand County Almanac” the idea that the land itself is a part of the community. His hope was that this concept would engender in us a “land ethic”; essentially a love for the land.

If there was a universal “land ethic”, perhaps we would not see mountaintop removal, pollution in our rivers, lakes and oceans and other major environmental problems. On a local level, perhaps a more widely established “land ethic” would result in less litter and dumping, graffiti, vandalism, destruction of archaeological sites, theft, etc. These are the main reasons more areas of the forest are not open to the public.

When I was working in Clarksville, TN as a City Forester, many people thought that the development of their Greenway, or walking trail, was a bad idea. Some wondered if it would be safe to walk, or would attract crime to nearby residences. Before it was developed, the area was indeed a sort of haven for unsavory activity. As it turned out, the trail was a big success, with nothing but good coming from it, and none of the concerns coming to pass.

I hope that, as Berea expands its trail system, pedestrians will eventually be linked from Berea to the Berea College Forest. Then the forest will, even more, become a “community forest”. By then, or perhaps through this happening, my desire is that a “land ethic” towards the forest will be more evident among its visitors.

By the way, I would like to thank Jason Burton, of ECU Campus Recreation, and the students under his direction, for cleaning up quite a lot of trash out at the Indian Fort Trails last weekend on Earth Day, April 22.

Stop to Savor Those Around You

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers
Editor

I have had some extremely charming interactions this past week in the course of my work; one of the weeks where I’m pleased to be working where I am.

My first such interview was last Friday, when I trotted out to Berea Community to interview the participants in the Garden Club, an afterschool club through the Pirate 21 program. There I spoke to Jared, Jaylan, Kennedy and Andrew about their favorite things about the garden club, and their favorite things about gardening.

They were quite open and enthusiastic, and pulled me over to the side of one of the greenhouses to show me the scene where one of them got “soaked”. Of course, this was not a problem, since being soaked is quite a desirable activity, though Jaylan said his pants got a little too wet this time.

After we walked back, one of them said, “well, you’ve gotten to interview us, can we interview you now?”

Certainly, I replied, wondering what in the world I was getting myself into. They then asked me excellent questions, such as what the best part of being a reporter was, what was the hardest part, what was the weirdest thing to happen to me, etc.

When I left, they all said good-bye and thanked me for coming around and interviewing them and taking pictures. I should have thanked them for such a charming, interesting afternoon.

Then on Monday, I visited with someone who jumped a generation from me on the other end. Marjorie Acevdeo, whom I have known for a while, invited me to sit on her porch while we chatted about her garden. An elegant, genteel woman, with an equally elegant, genteel house and garden, Marjorie shared her idyllic back yard with me while we talked of her history, gardening and travel adventures. Time slowed, and I didn’t even worry about the clock, a very unusual occurrence for me on a Monday.

After leaving Marjorie’s place I stopped at the Hubbard’s house to pick up a letter. They invited me in and we chatted about family, Berea and other things while I petted their loveable, half-blind cat who adored me once I found her special spot under the neck.

These three interactions lent a certain grace to my week, a subtle pause to my usual scurrying around during work hours. So nice to sit or stand with others and share. No one was in a hurry to end the interaction; there was no sense of impatience or those non-verbal cues that you get when someone wants you to hurry up through your words. I was sad to realize how many hurried conversations I have during the day, where I and others are like bumper cars, words bouncing off each other as we run from one thing to another.

This past week, there was no sense of getting lines out fast while one of you walks one way and the other scurrys in another. How many times do we say, “just wanted to stop you for a minute . . .” or “just a sec, got a question . . .” or “real quick, because I’m in a rush . . .” or “love to talk, but I have to go.”

So thank you Jared, Jaylan, Kennedy, Andrew, Marjorie, Dorie and Tom, for your gift of time, and your unintentional reminder that good conversation, like good food, should be savored slowly and appreciatively. It was a definite pleasure conversing with all of you.

County School Board Should do Better

Last year the school board gave Superintendent Tommy Floyd (@MadisonSuperT on Twitter) a nearly 11% raise. While passing on a piddling one-time stipend to teachers and staff who hadn’t gotten raises in years. That budget showed a surplus of about $5.4 million in a contingency fund. This after raising our property taxes 4%, the maximum allowed without public approval, which has become standard procedure for the school board every year.

What a difference a year makes. This year’s budget is approximately $600,000 in the red with the difference likely to be covered by dipping into the contingency fund. In January, Floyd sent letters to Madison County’s state legislators detailing the reduced amount of funding the district faces from state cuts and expiring federal stimulus money. Not to mention the huge increase in the amount the district must contribute to pensions and the Kentucky Retirement System. A dire situation is looming.

Next year’s proposed budget will also be in the red, requiring more than half the remaining contingency fund. With the fiscal problems facing the board, they still approved a $4.5 million athletic field upgrade for Madison

Central (with architectural fees, they actually approved more than $4.92M) including a 4,000 seat stadium and concrete-block ticket booths while students at middle schools share text books because there aren’t enough to go around. This upgrade is 300 percent more than was spent on Southern’s athletic field upgrade. I guess Southern’s parents are hardier, able to take tickets out in the weather; they didn’t get a booth upgrade.

The lone voice of reason has been John Lackey, who endures rude sighing and rolling of eyes by other board members while he speaks. This board needs to get a grip on reality. We can’t afford wasteful spending; after all they aren’t GSA. Oh wait, Lackey did point out that they sent about 50 people to a conference, 400 percent more than the next highest district sent. Maybe they’re more like GSA than we think.

The board office has five assistant superintendents and 109 employees. Laurel County, with approximately the same number of students, has 39 employees (2010 data by Legislative Research Commission) and one assistant superintendent. Many on staff at our board office receive full pensions as retired administrators in addition to salaries.

Recently the board gave Tommy Floyd a glowing recommendation. After all, we are near the top of the state in energy efficient schools. And we’ll have the Central Dome athletic complex. What more could we ask? How about something even remotely relating to academic performance? Nowhere in the official evaluation of the school superintendent are academic metrics in which to measure performance mentioned. Perhaps this is left out for a reason. According to KCCT content reports released for 2007-2011, scores at Central have fallen drastically each year. I doubt seriously a nearly $5million athletic investment will reverse this trend.

This is an election year. Several school board seats are up for reelection. Please contact the board and let them know we as tax payers will not stand for our money to be wasted at the expense of our children’s education any more. Give teachers the resources they need, give the kids the help they need but exercise common sense when making decisions. We can do better. We should expect better from our elected leaders.

friends and college students from foreign countries.

Marjorie moved to Berea in 1993 with her husband Ed, to live in the same town as their daughter. As soon as they saw the house, which was built in 1903, they knew instantly they wished to purchase it. Ed, who passed away several years ago, saw the interior room with the fireplace and stated that he wanted that room.

As far as Marjorie was concerned, "I loved all of it."

Ben Pogue had been the creative mind behind much of the backyard, building the patio and the garden. Marjorie added the waterfall feature in 2004. There is a dogwood growing out of the patio in front of the water feature, which Marjorie admitted was dying. She doesn't want to remove it until she has to, however. Pogue planted the Martha Washington dogwood, and Marjorie has always loved it. There is also a crab apple in her garden, along with two large evergreens.

"That whole area was a vegetable garden when I moved here," Marjorie said, pointing to her flower garden in the back part of the lawn. Marjorie, who had a small garden in Virginia before moving to Kentucky, planted vegetables for a while as well.

The trees, however, now shade so much of the yard that there isn't enough sun. The plot is now almost entirely flowers. She calls it a "cottage garden," with day lilies, poppies, peonies, roses and Siberian iris.

"I have breakfast here every morning," Marjorie said of her back porch. "When I'm at the sink I can see straight out through the French doors to the garden. I enjoy it very much."

When Sally first approached Marjorie about featuring her backyard, Marjorie said no because of the condition that the yard was in. Patti Davis from the Arts Council, who is studying to be a master gardener, came out and helped Marjorie get the yard in shape. Marjorie also hired Benjamin Truitt, and his parents Jim and Jean, both master gardeners, to help. They power washed the brick patio, and Jean spent several days weeding the flower garden.

"One of the charms of this place is everything is enclosed by green," Marjorie said, viewing the span of her yard from the porch.

Though the Prospect Street home is the first time Marjorie has been able to design a garden, she has always been very interested in them. She and her husband enjoyed traveling quite a bit, and they always enjoyed visiting the gardens in the various places. Marjorie has enjoyed seeing the gardens in Spain, Paris, London, Versailles and Italy.

FUNDS

$4.5 million in CDs. These CDs, or what could informally be called reserve funds, have stayed relatively intact for the past several years despite the economic recession of 2008.

When City Administrator Randy Stone was asked if he expected that to be unchanged at the end of the fiscal year, he stated, "I expect it to stay unchanged, unless something unexpected in cash flow changes."

This Tuesday, the Berea City Council approved the amended budget for 2011/2012, and two of the council members voted no, Jerry Little and Ronnie Terrill. Both have expressed concern that the amended budget calls for spending all but $2 million of the City's funds. When Stone stated that they always overestimated expenses and underestimated revenues, Terrill asked that a more realistic budget be passed.

"We used to have that kind of budget," Stone said in a later interview, "but there were problems there."

Meeks stated that there is the intention from the finance department to not touch money from the CDs.

Meeks pointed out that if there was a more conservative budget passed, with less flexibility, it would be less efficient to continually make budget amendments when circumstances changed in the City's revenue streams or expenses.

"It takes two readings in city council to pass a budget amendment," Meeks pointed out, "and it is less clean. No one has a crystal ball, so you need a budget that allows you to respond to what is happening in the city."

Two readings of a budget amendment takes a month, because of the twice a month meeting schedule of the city council. Even then, approval of a budget amendment could take longer, depending on how much discussion it may take or other delays.

In the recently passed budget amendment for 2011/2012, several different projects are budgeted. That way, according to Stone and Meeks, if one of them does not occur this year, the city can move on to another one without moving a great deal of money around and subsequently having to make many different budget amendments instead of just one mid-year.

The City of Berea has historically set a budget for the beginning of the fiscal year, and then submitted an amended budget around April. Meeks stated that the City can not pay for something that is not in the budget, which is why the budget needs to be very flexible.

"We don't pad our more predictable expenses," Meeks said, of the amended budget this year. "Salaries and other expenses we pretty much know. But the projects and equipment are the ones you pad, because you don't know which one will turn out this year or what the city will need."

For example, Meeks said, you may have budgeted for five police cars because that would be the ideal situation if the money was available. But if a track hoe breaks down, then the City would allocate the money to that emergency need and delay the purchasing of the police cars to possibly another year.

The fund balance of the City of Berea has decreased over the last five years. Fund balance represents the money the City of Berea would have if they closed up shop immediately, without counting their capital assets like buildings or parks. This has caused a few council members some concerns, since the fund balance has dropped $1.1 million the past five years in governmental funds, not including tourism and utilities.

This has been because of both the economic downturn, according to Meeks, and all the capital projects that the City of Berea has completed including the Expansion Park and improvements on the drainage of city streets. While the fund balance has dropped $1.1 million, Meeks pointed out, the net assets of the City of Berea have increased by $6.6 million.

Despite the fund balance changes, however, the $4.5 million in the CDs has remained the same.

"The City has basically the same reserves as always," Stone said. "We're in good financial shape."

There has been discussion by the Berea City Council in the past of adopting a formal rainy day fund policy, where an ordinance would be passed on how much money must stay in reserves and in what circumstances that money could be pulled for the City's use. The council did not pass an ordinance then, however, choosing to keep the greater flexibility of a more informal understanding of reserve funds.

City Administrator Randy Stone and Mayor Steve Connelly both suggested that the city council may wish to revisit the idea of a rainy day fund in the future.

Skateboard Enthusiasts Go Grilling and Chillin' Tuesday

Berea Parks and Recreation partnered once again with Cosmic Skate Shop in Lexington to host a Skatepark Grill and Chill Skate Competition on Tuesday evening at the Berea City Park Expansion. The event included prizes, a live DJ as well as free hot dogs and concessions provided by the Berea Volunteer Fire Department.

Several skateboarders from out of town came to participate at the Grill and Chill competition, enjoying the chance to compete in a different skatepark. Sixteen entered the competition, and they were split into the east side and west side. Elijah Jones and Tyler VanWinkle won in the two categories.

There was also a Bicycle Rodeo. Berea Police were on hand to inspect the bicycle and helmet for safety, and then bicyclists tried out the obstacle course.

To the left, local skateboard favorite Percy Johnson practiced before the Grill and Chill competition at the Expansion Park on Tuesday evening. Several skateboarders came out for the event from surrounding cities.

Terrill had complained that there wasn't a regulated rainy day fund, and also stated he wanted a more realistic budget where expenses weren't estimated high and revenues estimated low. Mayor Steve Connelly stated that they budgeted that way for flexibility and also auditing purposes.

Financial matters were discussed during the work session as well, when Utilities Director Ed Fortner brought the bids for the Walnut Meadow Pump Station. He recommended the low bid from Grant's Excavating of $652,869, which the council approved in their later meeting.

"It's basically a rebuild, or new construction," Fortner said, who stated that the pump station was beyond its last legs.

The utilities workers are physically going out to check on the pump station a couple of times a day. The City of Berea received a grant from the CDBG (Community Development Block Grant) for approximately half the cost; the other half will come from the depreciation/expansion funds of the utilities department. Another part of this project is the sewer extension of Terrill Branch, but the city will go ahead and start on the Walnut Meadow Pump Station, because of its run-down condition.

The City will start working on the easements for the Terrill Branch expansion. City Administrator Randy Stone stated that hopefully that wouldn't be too difficult.

"People were tickled to death when we did a door to door survey," Fortner said, of the Terrill Branch expansion.

The Berea City Council also approved a police department purchase of five mobile computers for the patrol cars. They received a Homeland Security grant with the Madison County Sheriff's Department. The grant was $39,000, and Berea will spend approximately $17,115 of the grant for their purchase, with the other portion for the sheriff's department.

Wendy Lynch from the 911 service in Madison County addressed the city council during the work session. The three governments have been contributing $40,000 each annually, and 911 asked for them to increase the amount to $60,000 for this next year. Lynch stated that the fees from the landline has decreased from a million dollars to $940,000, and they are struggling to meet operating expenses. They also, according to Lynch, have to look at a major capital project to replace their hardware and software. They have been using the same system since 1998, and they can no longer even update it.

"We've been spending the money on operational expenses," Lynch said, who stated that there are 22 employees with the 911 service, "and we haven't been able to bank anything for capital improvements."

They also do not have any back-up for their system, which puts the area in continual risk for having no coverage. CSEPP (Chemical Stockpile Emergency Preparedness Program) has paid for quite a few of the 911 expenses over the years, Stone stated, but that money would also only last a couple more years. For now, CSEPP will pay half of the cost for updating software and hardware.

Barbara Terrill stood up during audience comments for the city council meeting, and stated that she was dissatisfied with the council. She told the council that during one of the open meetings that council member Richard Bellando facilitated, she asked if the Human Rights Commission would cost the city any money, and she was told that it wouldn't.

"I read that the Human Rights Commission is going to cost the city $7,500 in the budget," Terrill said.

inspiration for Professor Lucy in the book."

Wayland was excited that some of the participants in the American Girl event on Saturday knew John Jacob Niles, who assisted Ulmann with her research in the 1930s.

"There were just all these connections," Wayland said.

After the girls and adults heard parts of the book read on Saturday, they went directly to the tour of the Doris Ulmann gallery, where Lisa Kriner spoke of Ulmann's work and her portraits. According to Wayland, Kriner emphasized the respect that Ulmann showed with her photographs of the Appalachian people, and she informed the girls that Ulmann also sent photographs as thank you's to those who consented to having their picture taken.

While the bulk of Ulmann's work is held at the University of Oregon, the gallery at Berea College has the photographs she took in the area of Berea, including eastern Appalachian.

After the gallery tour, the crew traveled to the Berea Arts Council, where Merwyn Jackson and Janet Southwood gave a dulcimer demonstration. Gwen Heffner from the Kentucky Artisan Center then talked about baskets, Amy Judd gave a presentation on the loom and Warren May discussed making dulcimers to finish up the Appalachian folk arts and crafts day, American Girl style. The participants completed the day with lunch at Boone Tavern.

Marty partnered with the advanced marketing class at Berea College to plan the event, a class that Martie Kazura teaches. The two had worked together before, when Kazura's students would enter the Berea College store as "mystery shoppers".

"When I realized what I wanted to do, I went to Martie because I knew I couldn't do it myself," Wayland said.

Wayland ended up visiting the marketing class weekly for many months, giving updates on how the event was going and going over the scheduling and deadlines. Kazura was pleased that her students were getting to create and work on a marketing plan for an actual event. The students designed the marketing announcement for the event and sent it to five different cities.

"Everything went really well all day long," Wayland said, who was very pleased with how her first American girl event turned out. "The girls asked really good questions at every point."

She stated that the participants, who were either from Berea or the surrounding counties, enjoyed the many activities offered that had something for people from 6-years old to 70. Wayland said that "If you can't tell me the truth, don't tell me what you think I want to hear."

Terrill also stated that she would rather have her tax money go towards the Berea Health Ministry, and asked the council to consider putting funding aside for that group.

• The City is currently working on drainage on Elm Street, changing the tops of the drainage boxes on Forest Street and working on the curbs on Center Street.

• Springbrook will be coming to install the new accounting software. The new budget for 2012/13 will be entered on this new software.

the loom presentation was very popular, and the girls enjoyed the dulcimer demonstration as well. There may have even been some creative ideas coming out of the day.

"One thing we talked about is the book could become a play," Wayland said.

Palmer Speaker at 140th Commencement

The 140th Commencement of Berea College will take place this Sunday, at 2 p.m. in Seabury Center. Parker J. Palmer, a renowned writer, teacher and social activist, will address the 235 graduates during the commencement service and will be awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree.

A graduate of Carleton College and the University of California at Berkeley where he earned a doctorate in sociology, Palmer was the Eli Lilly Visiting Professor at Berea College from 1993-1994. His teaching experiences during that time formed part of the basis for his book, The Courage to Teach. The book's premise is that effective teaching results from the integrity of the intellectual, spiritual and emotional dimensions of a teacher's inner-life.

Palmer is the founder of the Center for Courage & Renewal, which oversees long-term retreat programs for citizens and service professionals, including teachers, administrators, physicians, clergy, non-profit leaders and philanthropists.

A member of the Religious Society of Friends (Quakers), and a member of the local Quaker group, Berea Friends Meeting, Palmer has published more than 100 essays and nine books, including several best-selling and award-winning titles: "A Hidden Wholeness" (2004), "Let Your Life Speak" (1999), "The Courage to Teach" (1997), "To Know as We Are Known" (1993), "The Active Life" (1990), "The Company of Strangers" (1981), and "The Promise of Paradox" (1980). His most recent book is Healing the Heart of Democracy: The Courage to Create a Politics Worthy of the Human Spirit.

The Reverend Joseph W. Daniels, Jr., the lead pastor at Emory United Methodist Church in Washington, D.C., will speak at the Sunday morning 10:30 a.m. baccalaureate service in Phelps Stokes Chapel.

Dr. Joseph W. Daniels, Jr. is the lead pastor at Emory United Methodist Church in Washington D.C. Named a Rockefeller Foundation

Next Generation Leadership fellow, Daniels is a highly sought after speaker. His publications and seminars address the role of the "REAL Church," helping congregations navigate day-to-day challenges by creating real relationships that allow them to find more authentic, and meaningful church experience.

Daniels is the author of the book "REAL: Changing Lives. Changing Churches. Changing Communities" (2011) and the book "Begging for REAL Church" (2009).

Through personal examples and scripture-based stories, Pastor Daniels speaks to the essence of spiritual victory, lasting love and unspeakable joy that can lead to an abundant life. He uses this vision to call for leadership development through diversity training and community and economic development. Daniels teaches that healthy, wholesome and economically stable families and communities can exist all

Grief Support Series for May and June

Hospice Care Plus is hosting a six-session Grief Support Group Series that began on Wednesday, May 2. Each group session is open to the public and there is no charge to attend.

The Grief Support Series will take place each Wednesday from May 2 through June 6 from 6 - 7:30 p.m. at Trinity Church in Richmond, located just behind Pizza Hut on the bypass.

Nora Brasher, bereavement coordinator at Hospice Care Plus, says the series provides support and education by "sharing stories and learning from others how to cope with the loss of a loved one."

Brashear also says the series offers a safe place to give voice to painful and difficult questions, such as "why me?" Participants, she says, are able to find their own answers to these kinds of questions "amidst the caring support of others who are on a similar journey."

Talking, however, is optional.

"Privacy is always respected," says Brashear. "You don't have to talk if you don't want to."

To learn more about the Grief Support Group Series, contact Hospice Care Plus at 859-986-1500, 800-806-5492, or hospice@hospicecp.org.

Hospice Care Plus is a non-profit organization serving Estill, Jackson, Lee, Madison, Owsley and Rockcastle counties. Services include hospice care, palliative care, bereavement support, and hospice inpatient care at the Hospice Care Plus Compassionate Care Center. The Madison County real property tax roll will be opened for inspection from May 9 through May 23, 2012. The tax roll is in the office of the Property Valuation Administrator (PVA) in the Madison County Court-house Annex and may be inspected Monday through Friday between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. and on Saturdays between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 12:00 p.m. Under the supervision of the PVA or one of the deputies, any person may inspect the tax roll. This is the January 1, 2012 assessment on which State, County, and school taxes for 2012 will be due about October.

Any taxpayer desiring to appeal an assessment on real property made by the PVA must first request a conference with the PVA or a designated deputy. The conference may be held prior to or during the inspection period.

Any taxpayer still aggrieved by an assessment on real property, after the conference with the PVA or designated deputy, may appeal to the county board of assessment appeals. The taxpayer can appeal his assessment by filing in person or sending a letter or other written petition stating the reasons for appeal, identifying the property, and stating the taxpayer's opinion of the fair cash value of the property.

The appeal must be filed with the Madison County Clerk's office no later than one working day following the conclusion of the inspection period (May 24, 2012). A taxpayer failing to appeal to the county board of assessment appeals, or failing to appear before the board, either in person or by designated representative, will not be eligible to appeal directly to the Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals.

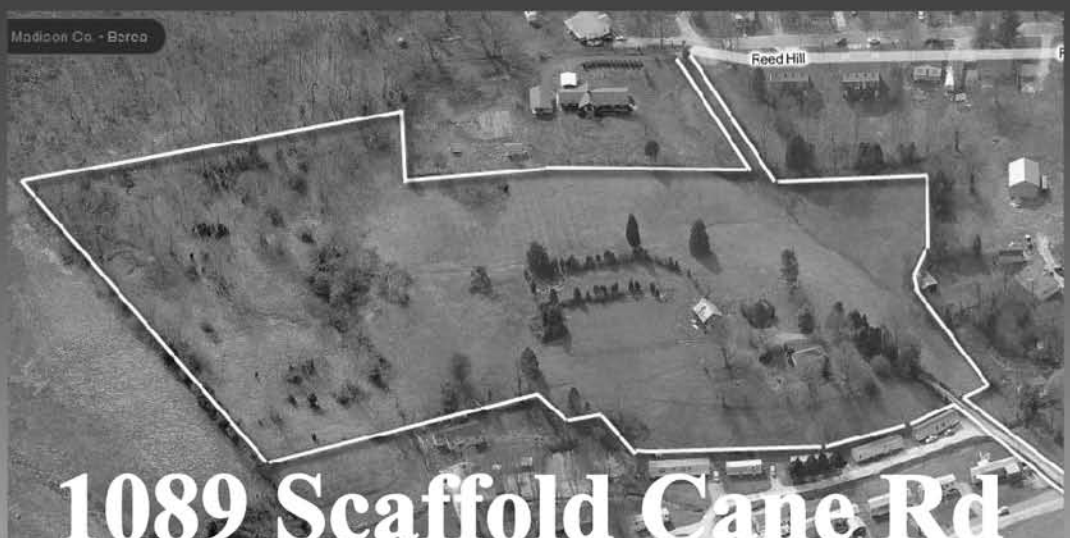

Appeals of personal property assessments shall not be made to the county board of assessment appeals. # Letter Carrier Food Drive May 12

The 20th Annual Stamp Out Hunger Food Drive will take place on Saturday, May 12 in Berea. Letter Carriers in Berea, in conjunction with the United States Postal Service, will be collecting non-perishable food items like canned meats and fish, canned soup, juice, pasta, vegetables, cereal and rice to help families in need in the Berea community.

People are asked to place their food donation at their mailboxes before their letter carrier arrives with the day's mail. The letter carriers will pick it up, take it to the post office, and then it will be delivered either to the Berea Food Bank or local church food banks.

People are asked to not include items that have expired or those in glass containers.

The National Association of Letter Carriers National Food Drive is the outgrowth of a tradition of community service that is usually exhibited by members of the letter carriers union over the years. For many years, a number of branches had collected food for the needy as part of their community service effort. Discussions were held by the NALC, U.S. Postal Service and AFL-

CIO Community Services Department to explore a coordinated effort. A pilot drive was held in ten cities in October 1991, and it proved so successful that work began immediately to make it a nationwide effort.

Input from food banks and pantries suggested that late spring would be the best time, since by then most food banks in the country start running out of donations received during the Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday periods.

A revamped drive was organized for May 15, 1993 -- the second Saturday in May -- with a goal of having at least one NALC branch in each of the 50 states participating. The result was astounding. Over 11 million pounds of food was collected; a one-day record in the United States, involving over 220 union branches.

From Alaska to Florida and Maine to Hawaii, letter carriers did double day, delivering mail and picking up food donations. It grew from that point.

From inception, the U.S. Postal Service, AFL-CIO Community Services network and local United Way organizations have worked together.

Children Needing Good Foster Homes

Imagine a world in which the concept of “family” is turned on its head, a world in which you are forced to pack your few belongings and move to a new home and a new family. Most likely you are not making the move with your brothers and sisters, since you all are being placed in different homes with new families. Now imagine that you are the new family taking in a child who is confused, rootless and upset. Very little imagination is required if you are one of the more than 400,000 children in foster care in the U.S. or one of the foster families who open their hearts and homes to children in desperate need of stability.

May is National Foster Care Month – a time when we turn our attention to the approximately 7,000 children and youth in foster care in Kentucky, and honor the dedicated foster families, relative caregivers, volunteers and child welfare professionals who serve them. Each May, National Foster Care Month provides an opportunity to shine a light on the experiences of the approximately 7,000 children in foster care in Kentucky and more than 400,000 children and youth in the nation’s foster care system.

have access to resources to help strengthen the family. In addition, there are millions of foster care alumni in the U.S. who represent all walks of life, many famous today, such as Dave Thomas, founder of Wendy’s and Steve Jobs who founded Apple.

No matter how much time you have to give, you have the power to do something positive that will “Change a Lifetime” for a young person in foster care. Nearly every community in the Kentucky Bluegrass is suffering from a shortage of foster families, including Berea. Children in foster care feel more secure and are likely to do better in school when they are able to stay in their own community. The larger the pool of qualified foster parents, the easier it is to ensure that children remain in their own neighborhoods and schools and the easier it is to keep siblings together in foster care. Help make Berea a welcoming place for kids in foster care – find out how you can get involved.

Being a foster parent is not the only way to have an impact on the life of a child in foster care. You can become a volunteer Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA), be a mentor, or support foster youth attending college and vocational school. Foster children need strong relationships with caring adults they can depend on in times of need, regardless of age. All children in foster care need a caring adult who becomes a supportive and lasting presence in their lives. Without families or stable relationships, too many of these formerly neglected and/or abused children and teens will end up facing life’s challenges all alone.

Research shows that young people who age out of foster care are far more likely than their peers in the general population to endure homelessness, poverty, mental and physical health, insufficient education, unemployment, incarceration and early pregnancy and parenthood.

Berea’s Getting Healthy

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

After the fun but rather soggy time last year, the crew of the St. Joseph Berea Foundation is hoping for an equally fun, but much drier, Get Healthy Berea event on Saturday, May 12.

“Last year was good, we still held it, but we’re really hoping for much better weather this year, and to stay a bit drier,” Christopher Schill, the director of development at St. Joseph, said with a chuckle.

The 4th Annual Get Healthy event will start with the traditional 8K run and one mile walk at 8 a.m., with the health fair taking place from 9 a.m. - 1 p.m. The corporate challenge obstacle course will start at 12 p.m. Last year, a wet, but proud, St. Joseph Hospital team were the winners of the corporate challenge.

All proceeds from the Get Healthy Berea event benefits the Patient and Family Assistance Fund at the hospital.

Last year was the first time for “Passport to a Healthy Life,” a competition between the four Berea elementary schools; Berea Community, Kingston, Silver Creek and Shannon Johnson. Children and their parents/guardians can accumulate points on their passports by visiting booths, participating in the race and the health screenings.

“The health screenings get them the most points,” Schill said. “We really want kids to see how important health is, and to think about checking on it.”

Kingston Elementary won the Passport competition last year by gathering the most points, and took the $1,000 grand prize that is to be used for the health and P.E. program. The second place winner gets $500, and the third and fourth place schools receive $250 each.

Participation was more limited with the Passport event because of the weather; Schill is hoping for much greater numbers next week.

“There will be lots of stuff for the kids, including a judo demonstration, zumba demonstration and chalk drawing contest,” Schill stated.

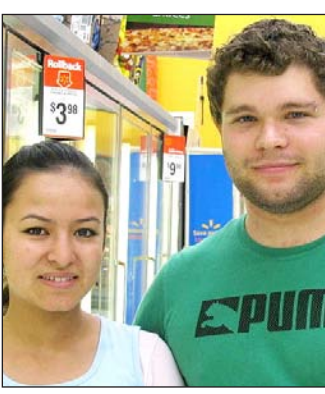

There are still openings for the corporate challenge teams -- contact Schill at 986-6498 if interested.

Berea BPW Plans for Next Year

The Berea Business and Professional Women's Chapter of the KFBPW met April 3 at the Smokehouse Grill in Berea. The meeting was dedicated to the regular business activities of the club.

Members had several ideas on how to take the club forward in the next fiscal year. Topics on the table were nomination of officers, membership drives and how to be a greater presence in the community and to each other.

The next meeting of the Berea BPW was held Tuesday evening, May 1 at 6 p.m. at the Smokehouse Grill in Berea. The meeting was dedicated to conducting interviews and selecting two candidates for the annual scholarship awards. Throughout the year the BPW club has several fund drives with the proceeds going toward making these scholarships possible. The club thanks everyone who has helped make this possible and invites them to come to the next meeting as members continue their work supporting the youth and the community.

Progress Club Visits Lexington Tea Room

Fifteen members of the Berea Progress Club met in the parking lot of the Chestnut Street Baptist Church at 10:45 a.m. on April 5, 2012. We boarded a bus and at 11 a.m. departed for the Greentree Spirits, a lovely tea room in Lexington. The day was brisk but bright, the countryside lush and blooming, and the company was the best, making for a very enjoyable trip.

Soon we arrived at the tea room where we were quickly seated, and our friendly waiter began service of the menu. It consisted of mushroom soup with sherry (one of those "I have to have that recipe" soups), spanakopita, mini corned beef, egg salad and herbed cheese tea sandwiches, lemon cupcakes, strawberry panna cotta and chocolate truffles; all served with spring blend tea. The tea room was lovely with some beautiful china collections in the room adjoining the dining room.

Following our leisurely tea, we again boarded the bus and before turning for home, took a colorful drive through the Lexington Cemetery. It is a place of history, the headstones marking the resting places of some of Lexington's founders and most famous people.

Back in the Chestnut Street parking lot, we held a brief meeting. Biji Baker suggested the members might enjoy the Lexington Show Case at the Highlands Manor for the June 7 outing and the suggestion was well received and taken under consideration.

Mary K. Kauffman confirmed our May 3 meeting as a road trip to Duncan Tavern in Paris, Kentucky where we will enjoy a luncheon. We will, as usual, be traveling in a bus and will depart at 10:30 a.m. from the Baptist parking lot.

The Club contribution to the Berea Cemetery was briefly discussed and Leslie Berger informed the members that we couldn't place a bench in the cemetery, according to cemetery rule. A tree planting was suggested with a plaque to mark the grave of the unknown Confederate soldier. Leslie Berger and Hazel Morris will research the project.

A nominating committee of Biji Baker, Dinah Tyree and Dottie Blackburn has been named by Club President Joyce Mosher to select and suggest a roster of officers for 2012/2013. The new board will be installed in August.

There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned and we went our separate ways, after another great day.

Respectfully Submitted,
Barbara L. McDonald

Library Dedicates New History Collection

The Madison County Public Library will host an open house and reception this Sunday afternoon to dedicate the new Paul Owens History Collection. The Collection will be housed in the Berea Room at the Berea library location. Owens has donated a major portion of his extensive collection of history books to form this collection.

A lifelong book collector and historian, Owens said he wanted the books to be accessible to people in the community. The collection is being phased in stages, with the first section focusing on Abraham Lincoln and the Civil War, in keeping with the ongoing sesquicentennial of the Civil War.

The Madison County Public Library is working this year on building the historical resources in the Berea Room, which focuses on Berea history and books. Madison County and Kentucky history are secondary areas of focus.

The dedication and reception will be held from 2-4 p.m. Sunday at the library, located at 319 Chestnut Street in Berea. It is free and open to the public.

For more information, contact Ruthie Maslin at (859) 623-6704 or (859) 408-3973 or Rmaslin@madison-library.org.

FOSTER

They are in urgent need of attention. Nearly half of the young people in foster care are older than age ten. For many years, the number of young people aging out of foster care has increased. That number currently is about 30,000 each year. These young people can exit foster care without appropriate family connections, resources, mentorship, employment or skills they need to live independently. Children and youth in foster care in a loving stable environment are capable of overcoming the repercussions of previous neglect and/or abuse.

Many communities are urgently seeking more everyday people to come forward to help these young people realize their full potential. Every state in our country has children in foster care. They belong to all of us. Now is the time to show we care. Because people do not understand the gravity of the problem they are reluctant to step up to help. We have more kids that need foster homes than foster homes to put them in.

For information describing the steps to becoming a foster parent, please view "Fall in Love with Adoption and Foster Care", contact your local Department for Community Based Services office or call (800) 232-KIDS (5437). You will be sent a packet of information that describes the different types of foster homes, different types of children and the requirements for being approved as a foster parent.

She joins more than 55,000 Lambda Sigma alumni around the world who have been recognized by the organization since it was founded at the University of Pittsburgh in 1922.

Concert and BBQ, May 13

The Caribbean Blues Band is returning for a free festive outdoor concert and Mother's Day barbecue at the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour in Richmond on Sunday, May 13, at 2 p.m. The band's specialty is island music featuring the steel drum artistry of Colin Berner. Other band members are Ben Brown, lead vocals and guitar, Dean Branum, bass, and Jim Corcoran on percussion.

The concert is part of the Second Sunday at Our Saviour concert series. Everyone is welcome to the concert and barbecue. In the event of bad weather, the concert and barbecue will be moved indoors. Grilling begins around 12:30 p.m. and church members are bringing picnic fare such as baked beans and chips.

The event is free, but donations are appreciated to support the team that is walking from San Francisco to Washington, DC, in support of the DREAM Act that provides for immigration reform. Tony Choi, a recent graduate of Berea College, is one of the walkers.

Reflections

FROM THE BEREA CITIZEN ARCHIVES MAY 1962

Coleman and Mat Kindred who lived by the slopes of Pilot Knob near Big Hill in 1962 were quietly celebrating their 70th wedding anniversary. The couple married on May 11, 1892. Mr. Kindred had worked for Berea College and knew President Frost well. Some of their memories included his having worked at a peach cannery at the foot of Bear Knob when he was twelve years old for 75¢ a day which he said was good money at the time. Mat made garments from wool she sheared, cleaned, carded and spun herself.

A break in had been reported at Elkins Drive-In on US 2 North. State police detective Lewis Babb and Berea patrolman John Grant had reported that thieves entered the Drive-In building by breaking the rear door and took money from a cigarette machine estimated at $25.00. A juke box was also broken into but no money from it appeared to be missing.

Coach Tony Lanham and the team at Berea High School were preparing for their first season of 11 man football with three weeks of spring practice. Steve Winfrey, George Moore, George Wyatt, Danny Philpot, Carl McCray, Johnny Carroll, David Williams, Mike Elkin, Ronnie Baker, Homer Gassett, Ray Tommain, Jerome Eaton, Breen Miller, Roger Mylum, Jimmy Tillery, Roger Hinton, Donald Bowles, Kenneth Ott and Benny Roop made up the team, helping coach was Don McDonald.

HYMER FORD SALES was recently presented the Ford Motor Company Distinguished Achievement Award. The award was presented to the local company for maintaining a high standard of dealership operation in all areas—management, merchandising, facilities and service. Only two dealers out of 18 in the area received the award. Shown making the presentation to Wayne Hymer (right) is Bob Terrell, field manager for this zone from the Cincinnati District Ford Sales Office.

Eight members of the Berea Brownie Scout unit had visited The Berea Citizen Office and press, they were Rita Martin, Vicky French, Linda Miracle, Pamela Ann Baker, Jackie Hayes, Becky Elkin, Ruth Barton and Patsy Cox. The group was accompanied by Mrs. George Meyer and Katie Meyer.

The Berea Fire Department had answered four fire calls for the week, a grass fire was put out at the Alva Pullins residence in

Dixie Park, a truck fire was in progress behind Elizabeth Rogers dormitory the fire had been extinguished but an injured man was taken to the hospital for treatment to burns, the fire department was back on campus at Dana Dormitory to put out a leaf fire and the department also responded to Reed Hill where there was a fire inside the Williams residence, the blaze was contained to the bath room in the house.

"The Fighting Littles" a comedy based on the novel of the same name was being performed by the senior class at Berea High. The cast included, Clifton Richardson, Dorothy Cameron, Carol Cruse, Glenda Harrison, Charles Tomlin, Pat Saylor, Joe Neuber, Donnie Hansel, Bobby Gibson, Karen Jackson, Kay Pigg, Bill Winston, Janice Kirk, Dianne Hopkins and Donna Tremaine.

To find out more about Mountain View Subdivision an ad encouraged folks to call Dr. John Baker or L. Marion Oliver. They could finance a $15,000.00 house and lot for as little as a $600.00 down payment. No down payment was required for veterans and a model home was being constructed.

At Silver Creek's 4-H Rally in the cake mix cake competition blue ribbons went to Sheila Roll, Linda Whittemore, Marsha Whittemore and Devonna Eaton. Red ribbons were won by Marlene Pratt, Patty Poff, Scarlett Lake, Frances Damrell, Karron Lakes and Wilma Miracle.
